

HUN Forces CONTINUE TO RETREAT

FALL BACK STEADILY TO THE NORTHWARD BEFORE HEAVY
ASSAULTS OF FRANCO-
AMERICANS.

STUBBORN RESISTANCE

Giving up Important Points Only After Vicious Fighting—Often
sive of Allies Growing Stronger.

With American Army on Marne Front, July 25.—Franco-American troops this morning advanced their line north of the river Marne more steadily. The Germans continue their retreating movement to the northward.

The French and Americans also made gains on other parts of the battle front, the Germans viciously resisting in the majority of cases.

English Advance.
London, July 25.—The Fall Mail
Gazette says rumors are current that British troops have made a great advance in the direction of Flushing, about mid way between Rethens and Soissons.
It is also reported that French forces have advanced on another part of the Aisne-Marne salient, and the army of the German crown prince has been placed in a position out of which extrication seems to be impossible.

French Gains.

French Headquarters in France, via Ottawa.—French troops are now in three miles of the town of Mont-dardier, which is the last strong-point on the German communication in this region. The town is being heavily shelled and bombed by allied squadrons.

Gains Three Miles.

London, July 25.—On the western front of the Soissons-Rethens salient the allied forces have advanced to an average depth of four miles on a 12
kilometer front during the past two days.
There were no new developments this morning in the battle areas according to advices from the field. The situation was considered satisfactory for the allies.

Line Wiped Out.

The terrain there is hilly and wooded and there is still quite a bulge in the German line. The bulge on the western end of the line was wiped out when the Germans retired from Chat-ton Thierry.

Battering Positions.

From all sides the allied army is battering the German position unceasingly. Bombs by the hundred are being dropped with good effect on the German posts. Artillery attacks are reported to have brought down 40 German machines in serial combats north of the Marne Wednesday. The German Crown Prince has not yet been forced into a general retreat, but not a day of the allied offensive has gone by without additional gains being made by the allied troops.

Communication Handicapped.

Virtually cut off from the enemy
head of communication have been lost and this position is becoming increasingly uncomfortable as fresh troops failed to check the steady steal forward of the allies.

Berlin Reports.

Berlin continue to report that all aligned thrusts are being defeated, using the adverb completely in tolling Tuesday's fighting. Similarly the German war office describes the French advance toward the Aveyron northwest of Montdardier. In which the enemy lost 1,550 prisoners, 4 canons and 300 machine guns as of no effect.

Capture Position.

In Albitz the French have completed their present movement by capturing important heights and occupying the rear of the pocket and occupation of two additional villages.
British and allied shipping losses in June were the lowest in 21 months or since September, 1916. Losses due to German submarine and mines and aircraft risks totaled 76,821 tons in June. British losses, 161,000 tons compared with May's 163,000 tons.
In June were $1,000,000 less and with June 1917, 43,000 tons less. The losses for the quarter ending June 30 were the lowest for any quarter since the third of 1916.

Push Ahead.

Overcoming strong enemy resistance the allied troops are maintaining their progress on the Rethens-Southern front. General Foch's offensive is upon its second week today when the Germans still being forced back from the smashing blows of the French, British and American armies.
Fierce severity marks the fighting in a greater portion of the front fronts are being made by the French and Americans between the Ourcq and the Marne and by the British southwest of Rethens.

German Defense Strong.

As allied pressure has forced the Germans back within the pocket formed by the battle line. The German defensive efforts have increased in ferocity due to the continuous flowing in of reserve divisions. The allied offensive, therefore, in one week
not only has brought the fifth German offensive to a hasty halt, but has turned it into a disastrous repulse, and also forced the enemy to bring in reinforcements from other fronts. Military observers in Paris believe the German command is preparing for a new blow against the allies in order to counter-balance the situation on the Rethens-Southern front.

Close in Pocket.

From the west along the Ourcq and from the south the French and Americans are closing in on the Tere en Thierry, German base of supplies on the lower side of the pocket. The town has been under violent shell fire for several days and the enemy has made vicious counter-attacks which,
although partly successful temporar-

ITALIANS ESCAPED FROM RUSSIA AND GO BACK TO FIGHT

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Denison, Ohio, July 25.—Escaping from the Austrians and making their way through Siberia to Japan, five hundred Italian soldiers passed through here last night enroute to an Atlantic port where they will sail for Italy. The men were captured while fighting on the Platine front and were impressed into service in the Austrian army in Russia. They rebelled and marched afoot to Siberia and thence to Japan.

Finally were turned into advances for the hard-hitting French and Americans. Not only has Kepel been re-taken, but the Americans have advanced beyond Courpol, five miles south of Souissons.

Spectacular Advances.

Between Courpol and the Marne
the French and Americans are fighting their way forward through the forests of Ferri and Ries. Bridgeheads along the Marne have been extended further while the advancement on the western side of the salient has been more spectacular. The steady allied pressure on the eastern side continues unabated and is making progress.
British troops around the important point of Vrigny, three miles south of Vesle, and the Rethens-Southern railroad slowly are pressing the enemy back. This advance, not to mention that the Germans even outclassed the Russians when the latter are attacking
the Russians and added he was glad
to be a prisoner.

Hun Aviator Brought Down by Rifle Bullet Fired by Yankee Cook

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

With American Army on Aisne-Marne Front, July 25.—American's in a mess outfit shot down a German aviator during the Franco-American offensive south of Soissons by hitting the enemy in the head with a rifle bullet.

The German dropped down and attacked the wagon train with machine gun, flying low to make his aim certain. The panic stricken mules caused confusion and the soldiers had their hands full to control the animals. The young soldier learned from a wagon that the enemy was flying near and shot him. The machine gunner was a German lieutenant and eighteen men who were captured by the Americans were questioned concerning the remainder of the battalion. The officer replied "those eighteen are all that are alive." The lieutenant said the speed of the Americans had surprised his army and they had experienced. He said the Americans often outclassed the Germans when the latter are attacking
the Russians and added he was glad
to be a prisoner.

LAWYERS REQUEST THAT INDICTMENT BE QUASHED

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Eau Claire, July 25.—Following the filing of a motion by attorneys for Louis B. Nagler, former assistant secretary of state, charged with libelous remarks, requesting that the indictment be quashed, the federal court took the case under advisement. Mr.
Nagler withdrew his plea of not guilty
in order to make the motion.

Judge Evans denied the application of D. J. Auer, local German lawyer, for permission to enter a plea of no contest, following which Auer entered a plea of guilty to the charge of publishing seditious articles and failure to file translations of articles with the postmaster. His attorneys immediately introduced testimonial evidence here are convincing that General Ludererdorf shortly will launch a counter offensive. His object will be first to clear the front between Soissons and Rethens.

Second to lessen the demoralizing effect of a projective retreat to the Vesle and third to have Germany regain the initiative.

It is to his interest to prolong the present battle as long as possible even at the expense of his treasured reserves so as to keep the French occupied and give him time to prepare for his blow.

GERMAN ATTACK FAILS.

Paris, July 25.—On the north bank of the Marne the Germans launched a counter-attack in the region of Potiers, Chateaudun, pronouncing the movement reports that the enemy temporarily occupied a little wood to the north of Triloup and the village of Chassins. These positions, however, were recaptured by the French soon afterward.

SURPRISE RAID.

French troops last night carried out a surprise raid along the line south of Montdardier in which prisoners were taken, the war office announced today.
Violent artillery actions are reported from the region of Ourcq and to the west of Rethens.

ENGLISH ADVANCE.

London, July 25.—British troops
last night pushed forward slightly south of Rethens wood in the Hebu-taine sector north of Albert, the official statement from Field Marshal Haig today records, and adds that a few prisoners and six machine guns were captured. South of Villers Bre-tonneaux the Germans last night
pushed into one of the British posts.
They were driven off by counter-attack.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The army high command has thus far engaged 64 divisions in the battle, representing groups of the German army from Flanders to Alsace. The 64 divisions are nearly a third of the available
German army.

ENEMY HARD PUT.

The conclusion is drawn that the enemy is being hard put to it for reserves. In authoritative circles here,
the view is expressed that Germany has reached what might be called the downward curve in her man power.
This applied to the army of Ruprecht
as well as the rest of the German army and explains why Ruprecht is not inclined to take the offensive. This dropping of German man power is not a sudden occurrence. It has been known to the allied military authorities for some time.
The infantry units have been weakened by the withdrawal of some troops and by heavy losses.

Owing to the defection of the Russians, Germans have been able to increase to 210 divisions on the western front this year. From January 1 to July 24, these divisions have been engaged about 430 times, so that each has been thrown into battle at least twice during the year.

GERMANY'S POSITION ACTIVE.

When the present battle began, the Germans had 98 divisions on that portion of the field westward from Rethens as far as Chateau Thivry.
Now the front has been widened by the allied attack from the latter city to the Aisne and the Germans have hurried more forces into the line, bringing the total now engaged on this part of the front to over 40 divisions and placing a considerable strain on the enemy reserves.

They still have reserve divisions concentrated at some places behind their line, but many of the units comprised of these divisions have been so sorely tried this year and are so exhausted that they are all sufficiently fatigued to participate in a new attack, should the German staff decide to order one to retrieve the defeat of the Crown Prince.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED.

Big developments are impending on the Aisne-Marne front from today, although advices are lacking. Unofficial reports make it appear not only are the allies rapidly continuing the progress of ousting the Germans from their lines, but a movement
may be in progress or even execution
by means of which it is hoped to trap a goodly section of the German Crown Prince's army.

Accordingly the local board intends to finish up the examinations as soon as possible to be in readiness for new calls.

EXAMINATIONS WILL COMMENCE TOMORROW

One Hundred And Ten Class Of 1918 Men Will Be Given Physical Examinations Tomorrow.

Physical examinations of the men who registered with the local board June 5th last will begin tomorrow morning at nine o'clock and continue throughout the day. Approximately one hundred and ten men registrants are to be examined, this being all who have been placed in the first class. Two hundred and ten men registered in this district in 1918 and one hundred of these have been given deferred classifications.

Announcement was made yesterday by Major General Fitzpatrick that August calls Wisconsin men would take practically all members of class one including those who registered June 5 last. Accordingly the local board intends to finish up the examinations as soon as possible to be in readiness for new calls.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS CITED FOR BRAVERY IN NEW OFFENSIVE

Cable Dispatches Tell Of Conspicuous Bravery Of Workers Along Front Line

Cable dispatches from Paris today show conspicuous bravery of Y. M. C. A. workers along front lines in the new offensive. H. J. Johnson, East Orange, N. J., was cut off six hours by German barrage, but finally got through with an American squad. He worked all day bringing in wounded and assisting doctors in advanced dressing stations. Charleston, Illinois, and Rev. F. A. Cunningham, Providence served as stretcher bearers and cared for wounded in dugouts until ordered by the commanding officer to move back. All Y. M. C. A. supplies in the attacked zones were given free to soldiers, most of whom had lost their ration. Chocolate and biscuits were used to stay their stomachs until new supplies arrived.

W. H. Dunforth of St. Louis, Richard Shreve of Rochester, N. Y., and others stuck to their posts in advance areas distributing supplies, and helping ambulance men in making the wounded more comfortable. One secretary took two wounded men back to the dressing station.

WISCONSIN FARMERS SAID TO BE PROSPEROUS

The farmers of Wisconsin are as prosperous and contented as any in the world and the dairy industry is responsible.

That was the conclusion which members of the Arkansas Profitable Farming Bureau came to after the recent tour of its members through Wisconsin's dairy districts. Governor Charles Collier, through a large delegation of Arkansas farmers and officials recently visited Wisconsin for the purpose of inquiring into its dairy industry and to acquaint themselves with the work of Wisconsin's College of Agriculture and Agricultural Experiment Station.

John F. Nicholson, agriculturist for the Little Rock Board of Commerce, is convinced that his state will profit very greatly by the visit to the dairy farms and plants of Wisconsin.

"Wisconsin farmers," he reports, "work hard and they put a great deal of intelligent thought into their work which is one of the main reasons for their success, but back of it all is the most important in Wisconsin's prosperity are the state's agricultural college and university. These have been the most potent factors in making Wisconsin the great industrial state that it is. Wisconsin stands as one of the finest of the new theatres built this year."

MEMBERSHIP MEETING WILL NOT BE A SMOKER

The membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, tomorrow night will not be a smoker. Refreshments will be served. The meeting is not confined to the membership of the Chamber; all being invited.

More general use of the Farm Help Bureau is being made. Today a number of volunteer workers are assisting farmers. There is a large number willing to aid in the harvest, and the farmer is urged to make use of the service offered. The Chamber of Commerce phones are: Bell 22, Rock County 123.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO ENLARGE CAMP CUSTER

Battle Creek, Mich., July 25.—Reports that the government has under consideration at least tentative plans for the enlargement of Camp Custer, are given strength by the recent arrival at the camp of twenty surveyors, who are working on 3,000 acres of land adjoining the cantonment. The land extends into the vicinity of the village of Augusta on the west side of the present limits of the camp.

While confirmation of the government's intention to enlarge the camp has not yet been given, it is pointed out that the acreage, unusually level, would be ideal for additional barracks and drill fields.

One report that spread through the camp with the arrival of the surveyors was to the effect that the additional land taken over recently for artillery range purposes would be abandoned when the new acreage was taken in and artillery training at Camp Custer discontinued. Infantry sections of two divisions were to be located at Custer simultaneously, and when the time for assembling the divisions came, the artillery brigades, located at some other camp would join them at points of embarkation, according to this report.

ANOTHER LOCAL BOY ENLISTS IN THE NAVY.

J. Norris Thayer completed his enlistment in the navy at Great Lakes Naval Training Station yesterday and will report for active duty Wednesday, July 31. He is the son of Mrs. Milo Thayer of Lima Street, was in the employ of the Janeville Machine company, and was a member of Company G.

JOHNSTOWN FARMER BOY REPORTED STILL MISSING

Search is still being made for Benjamin Millard, fourteen year old Johnstown boy, who disappeared Monday morning and who, it is thought, ran away. Sheriff Whipple stated this morning that he had received no word relative to the finding of the lad. With the theory of foul play practically abandoned, the boy's parents are convinced that he ran away and believe that he will return this week.

The Little Mother of Shock 3

Zoe Beckley

THE DREADFUL NIGHT

darkness settled over Shock 3. A tiny cradle made things desolate inside. Sally went about among the beds on her good-night rounds, singing her "children" extra pants and lullaby in mind, while whispering the secret words she could offset the darkness. The lights were dimmed and the night nurses came taking her place at the Little side at the far end, while Sally sat down in a low chair by Stephen's bed.

She drew her diary from her pocket and made some dictated entries. She noted the current date and wrote:

"S. T." Just that. What was there to say? In a few days, perhaps, there would be nothing more to write about Stephen Tonner. The orders were carried out.

His slender form lay still upon the gilded stone just at the entrance and presently he would be another mound and the white cross in "God's acre" the hill. Better not write more.

Stephen sat motionless, his boot on top, feeling like a person in a dream. It seemed only a sound would break his stillness. It seemed as though death were there beside her.

He sat up and put her fingers to Stephen's wrist. The pulse was still throb, spashing across the puddy skin. They were coming nearer, going to the door of the shack. She did not wait. Dr. Will, and turned her head. But it was Roger Landis, so softly closed the door and same toward her.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

Sally pointed to the cot. "Why, that's our unknown. Ah, pitte mere, I see trouble in your eyes. Tell me."

"There's not much to tell," said Sally, grateful all the same for his presence and the sympathy and strength he radiated. "He's some one I used to know. Some one, from home—our town, Dr. Rolfe and wife. He can't live."

Roger scowled. "Face," he called. "Little Mother," said he, "just tell me this one thing. Is it everything to you whether he lives or not? I mean is he—your happiness?"

Sally looked down at the figure on the bed, then back into Roger's very earnest eyes.

"No, she answered steadily. "Once I thought so. But now—he's just one of my wounded soldiers. I didn't want him to go—alone. That's all."

It was no time to say what Roger longed to say. With a quick clasp of Sally's hands he turned to go.

"You should, need me—for anything—I'll be out there." Sally gratefully felt safe again.

She sat down again to watch and wait and tend. She forced herself to think of Stephen as she had of the police; she sat up nights to nurse, and the boy from Algiers and the others. She tried hard to be just the nurse. But when he muttered and half woke from the stupor, she sprang drawing him out of life; she slipped an arm under his pillow and drew him over so slightly, ever so tenderly against her, as a mother would a sleeping baby.

She kept her fingers on his wrist, fearing momentarily to feel a pulse stop, keeping the heart stimulant close in reach in case of emergency. It was wrong to break the schoolroom stillness. It seemed as though death were there beside her.

There came the sound of footsteps outside, spashing across the puddy skin. They were coming nearer, going to the door of the shack. She did not wait. Dr. Will, and turned her head. But it was Roger Landis, so softly closed the door and same toward her.

At the end of a dinner black coffee in small cups is served to the women in the drawing room, and the men are served as they smoke, in the dining room.

TRY THESE.

Wash Skirt Belts somehow have a habit of becoming limp, no matter how well they are starched. To keep one skirt in place, make a snug belt fastened with hooks and eyes or a girdle (which can be purchased by the yard at any notions counter), and to the exact belt the skirt can be securely pinned from the inside—thus saving one's shirtwaists and lingerie from becoming torn.

To See Bottom of Skirt—Buy an ordinary bathroom mirror, fifteen inches high and twelve inches wide. By setting it on the floor, you will see whether her skirt shows, and if the outside skirt hangs properly.

To Can Help a Good Cause if you will take to our hospitals the ends of party worn table cloths to be made into napkins and tray cloths. Where they are too badly worn for use they will be welcomed to use to dress burns.

To Prevent the Coating on the inside of the coffee pot, fill the pot half full of water and add a tablespoonful of baking soda. Boil about fifteen minutes. If this is done once a week the coffee pot will always be bright on the inside.

Milkweed Stems Can Be Removed by rubbing a spot with soap. Then thoroughly rub in powdered chalk and lay the garment on the grass in the sun. As it dries sprinkle occasionally with clear water.

THE TABLE.

Canned Swiss Salad (from above menu)—Clean and boil beans until tender. Pack in cans. Add one teaspoon of salt and enough boiling vinegar to make slightly sour. Seal tightly. These are delicious in winter when other vegetables are scarce.

To Fry, take greens out of liquid. Seal tightly. These are delicious in winter when other vegetables are scarce.

Wash Bean Loaf—Put four cups of (parboiled) wax or green beans through a food chopper; also one small onion and one-half pound of ham. Then add one-half cup bread crumbs, seasoning to taste, and enough milk to moisten. Mix thoroughly, shape into a loaf, place in buttered pan, add three-quarter cup of hot water, cover and bake about thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Uncover, remove the loaf, add one-half cup milk and one-half cup water to the dripping pan in the pan; then mix with a heaping tablespoonful of flour rubbed to a paste in a little cold water. Cook until thick enough, then pour on and about the loaf and serve.

"Hoover" Pie Crust—One cup cornmeal, one-half cup of white flour, one-half cup of lard, one-half cup of water. This makes one pie.

Year Victory Gums—Two cups whole wheat flour, one and one-half cups (uncooked) oatmeal, one-half cup cornmeal, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup shortening, one-half teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, one egg, two cups milk. Bake twenty minutes. This will make two dozen gems.

Sausage Croquettes—Take summer squash and cut in one-half inch pieces. Parboil in salted water until tender. Remove from water and drain, then roll in beaten egg and cracker crumbs and fry in butter or drippings.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT.

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of Camphor, which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy. ST. VITUS' DANCE

Letter from a reader: "Why have been interested in your column with great interest and have found many things from which I have derived benefit, but I have never seen any reference to St. Vitus' dance. My daughter, aged 9, has been acting queer for some time, but I did not think of anything serious until she began to watch her and feel constantly as though she was constantly dancing. She had scarlet fever a year ago and a few weeks later began to have pain in her arms and legs, particularly in the knees and ankles. About this time she had a severe attack of tonsillitis or sore throat as a serious matter in a young child. A child with St. Vitus' dance requires first of all absolute rest in bed, preferably on a porch or elsewhere in the open air. Next, the daily supervision of her physician.

Even after the acute or febrile stage has passed and the child is really able to be about, it is remarkable how great the improvement from a day or two of confinement in bed. Better sleep at night; less twitching and jerking of the muscles by day.

Throughout an attack of St. Vitus' dance, which endures from three months to three years, depending largely on the intelligence applied in the management of the treatment, the child's heart must be watched by the attending physician, who should be carefully chosen.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Some Things We Can't Undertake.

Dr. Brady will be glad to receive inquiries from his patients and friends concerning the best interests of their children.

Would electricity be advisable for any case? We would be grateful for any suggestion you may be able to offer.

Chorea, commonly called St. Vitus' disease, is no more a "nervous" disease than scarlet fever or tonsillitis is.

Electricity is no more essential in the treatment of chorea than it is in the treatment of pneumonia or influenza.

It was wrong to send her back to school after her health was fully restored, and doubly wrong to urge her to make up her studies.

Tonsilitis, scarlet fever, joint inflammation (so-called acute articular rheumatism), inflammatory rheumatism, rheumatic fever, acute infantile arthritis) and St. Vitus' disease are different expressions of an infection, probably with a Streptococcus, which gains entrance through the tonsils. Which may explain why competent physicians insist on a patient with ordinary tonsilitis remaining at rest in bed. Another accident not have any deleterious effect.

SOUR MILK.

WHY DOES MILK SOUR IN A THUNDER STORM?

Answer—It doesn't. Milk sour because of the production of lactic acid from the sugar in milk through the action of bacteria, probably the bacillus which are naturally present in milk. Ten or fifteen drops of paraffine of hydrogenated oil placed in a bottle of milk will prevent souring and improve its flavor.

LIFE OF A MANAGER
NIGHTMARE NOWADAYS

(The International News)
New York, July 25.—Being a major league manager in war times is a regular nightmare.

Ask Jack Hendricks, Wilbert Robinson, George Schaffner, or the pilot of any other major league club that has been hard hit because of the war.

For the sixteen major league managers in the pennant hunt this year Robinson and Hendricks have had to stand for more disappointments than any of the rest. The Cardinals have been wrecked and reworked by the draft and enlisting. The Robins have been torn to bits by the same process.

Robinson's one consolation seems to be centered in his pitching staff, for old though they may be, the workaday numbers of the Robins' corps have managed to deliver the goods at highly uncertain times. The result is the Dodgers have escaped the cellar.

The corps with recruits gathered from far and wide to fill gaping holes, cannot be expected to finish better than eight unless Hendricks' works some unthought-of miracle. But it isn't Hendrick's fault that a first division team has been beaten to the ground, and it isn't Robbie's fault that the Dodgers have been beaten and broken by the war burdens they have had to carry.

The best part of it all lies in the fact that neither of these managers let out a single yelp about the turn of luck.

PETE HERMAN BEST OVER LONG ROUTES(The International News)
New York, July 25.—Pete Herman, champion of the bantamweights, is not a short distance battler.

The little lad from the Crescent City proved this fact recently in an eight-round bout at Jersey City against Frankie Burns, the clever "Skeeter" from Newark.

The Jersey boys were disappointed because Burns failed to relieve Herman of the title by knocking him out, but they had the satisfaction of seeing their favorite win by a comfortable margin. Burns fought all around Herman in practically every one of the eight rounds.

He was the aggressor all the way, and he made Herman sweat his shell in at least six of the eight rounds, but he could not put across the punch that would have made him king of the boxing world. Herman is a rugged youth with one of those east iron jaws.

Herman's few dashes in the eight rounds consisted mainly of attempts to punish Burns in the midsection. He is the more rugged of the two. Over the long route he would beat Burns' master unless Frankie should manage to slip over one of these "holes." Herman is a battler of the Nelson type, one who can go the long route, give and take, and come out of the fray the best bet because of his stamina.

ATTRACtIONS AT FAIR TO BE OF HIGH CLASS

That the shows that are to be put on this year at the local fair are all to be of a high class order is evident from one look over the list of attractions that are to be presented at the fair, in the month of August. Every one of the shows is of high class order and full of thrills and amusement.

One of the best attractions on the ground will be the stage in which the "Dive" will make a leap for life, from an illuminated tower. The midway secured by the fair is considered to be one of the largest and cleanest ever presented at a County Fair. Other attractions worthy of note, and all of the highest type possible are: Nat Ries, Amusement Company, Submarine Show, Peerless Women, Bellville Supreme Buck Wives, Congress of Athletics, Hooters Brothers Famous Arena Circus, and Finny Mile, the smallest piano player in the world. Besides all these high class entertainments, are numerous attractions that will delight the kiddies such as The Ferris Wheel, Mammoch Riding Devices. The $10,000 Carpet is also to feature, while the granddaddy to be one of the best of its kind in the fair is The Congress Diving Wonders. All these attractions promise to make Fair Week in Janesville, one to be long remembered.

NO LEATHER SHOES CAN BE HAD IN BERLIN

The Hague, July 25.—Leather shoes are sold out in Berlin, says the correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblatt.

"Losing of all kinds, including underclothing, is most difficult to get, even with a clothing card. No handkerchiefs, no shirts, no socks, no napkins, no wallet or cotton jacket for baby. Despite washing and toilet soap has long been unobtainable.

Many, many things are obtainable that are sold at twice the price, although prices may run much higher or lower in peace times. Yet the Berliner looks fairly clean and well-groomed. The art of clothes mending has been carried to a fine point here. And water and sand keeps you clean, too, at a pinch."

A smokable cigar cannot be bought for less than ten francs, and smoking tobacco costs quite a bit of rice and beans and new and salad oil, and turpentine and sealing wax and a hundred other articles. Gone, completely gone.

"Only as regards fuel, the Berliners are better off. There is hardly any limit on gas, electricity or coal.

Great material privations have been and are being born with fortitude. Added to which are the pangs of mourning and sorrow, grief and anxiety in thousands of homes for the fallen, and those about to fall."

Excellent Patriotic Lecture Given By Walter Kirkland Greene—Entertaining Musical Program

PROGRAM YESTERDAY

An eloquent lecture on "America and the War" was given at the session of Chautauqua last evening by Walter Kirkland Greene of Alabama. "One of the good things which would come out of this war," he said, "will be that there will be no more war." He said, "We are fighting for the freedom of the world, and the world will be better off when we have won." The speaker emphasized the fact, "that descendants of the men who wore the blue and the grey, were fighting side by side in this great conflict for the principles of democracy."

He had recently attended a "Conference to Enforce Peace," presided over by the President of the organization, Wm. H. Taft and he explained the objects which the society was working for, "as making war, until a just peace which should be lasting, could be attained."

He spoke of the fact mentioned by Fred Adams Smith in this conference that there was not a home in England or France, which had not lost a close relative in the war." In response to a request made by one of the leaders, for prayers for the enemies of this country, Rev. Lyman Abbott was roused to reply, "I will pray for the civilian population who have had no chance to say what they will do, or for the poor belated soldiers in the German army, but I will not be the aggressor all the way, and he made Herman sweat his shell in at least six of the eight rounds, but he could not put across the punch that would have made him king of the boxing world. Herman is a rugged youth with one of those east iron jaws.

LINCOLN MC CONNELL

"He Gets Juice Out of Tombstones."

Ralph Parlette says this about Lincoln McConnell: "I wish everybody who 'don't like lectures' could hear him. I wish the king who never smiled again would sit in on a McConnell outburst. He can crack the paint on a wooden Indian's cheek. He can get juice out of a tombstone, and flowers out of a snow bank. He can read a page from the Congressional Record and convulse you, or a page from Webster's Unabridged and make you scream."

"His lectures are a series of terrific broadsides, satirical stories, impersonations and stage gymnastics. He enjoys his lectures as much as anybody. He smacks his lips—the sentences taste so good. Remember, he is tremendously serious. You laugh, yell and cheer; you wipe the tears out of your eyes and realize you have risen. It was a sermon all the time, with the fun and side show just to save things. The audience has been shot, slugged and spanked, but every one sees it was needed. McConnell has a way of biting the hardest licks as though he were trying to commute the punishment. He looks down over the audience and lovingly watches the villains die."

McConnell will lecture here twice the last day of the Chautauqua.

"THE UNBELIEVER"

MONDAY, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY

Produced by Thomas A. Edison in Conjunction --With the--

United States Marine CorpsThe Story is One That Carries a Wonderful Patriotic Appeal.

The plot contains every element of interest.

Read What Manager Zanias Says:

In presenting this big production we feel free to state that this is one of the very best pictures we have ever shown.

"The Unbeliever" played for a long time at the Studebaker Theatre in Chicago at prices ranging from 50c to $1.50 per seat. Our prices are popular prices.

We are indeed proud to be able to offer to the public of Janesville, at this time, such a wonderful patriotic picture as "The Unbeliever" which is based upon the book by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews called "The Three Things", and are sure you will all want to see it.

in France, U.S. Reports

Washington, D. C., June 27.—The fellow in the war movie "The Unbeliever," who clung to his Bible, while he was blazing away at the Germans, has been reported severely wounded in the casualty lists from the war department. His name is Sergeant Ross Gill, marine, of Perry, Mo. Gill posed for the film last fall at Quantico, Va.

AMUSEMENTS

Apollo Theater.

One of the most intense films ever shown in Janesville will be viewed at the Apollo theater next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, under the title of "The Unbeliever" by George Kleine.

"Aside from its lofty, patriotic motives, its great lessons, its startlingly realistic scenic effects, the thrill of the story itself makes for an entertainment that holds the spectator in breathless absorption. It has been capped by a few productions, regardless of the amount spent upon them. The war department "loaned" many hundred members of the Marine corps to carry out the effect of the story demands, and as a result the military scenes are done with an exactness and convincing snap that gives a grimly perfect setting for this tragic but inspiring glimpse into the horrors of "No Man's Land."

The film tells the story of a young American aristocrat, who has little faith in God, humanity or the brotherhood of man. He joins the Marines and once "over there," he finds his umbrellas are but shadows and that God, humanity, and brotherhood are real.

"The Unbeliever" can stand on its own merits without outside aid. It palpitates with vigorous action, tender emotion, and clean wholesome sentiment.

This super-feature is being presented at the Apollo theater.

Waupaca's "Vigorous Co-operation with the Food Administration" expresses the spirit of the threshers meeting at Mahawa.

Practically all the threshers of the fifty-eight threshing committees in the county responded to the call of the county threshing committee. They discussed the methods of doing a good job in the threshing and of preventing waste this year. A resolution with this end in view was adopted.

ALBERT N. DEPEW

My name is Chester Petty Officer U.S.A. Navy—Member of the American Legion of France—Captain of the French Battalion—Second Lieutenant of the French Artillery.

Officer in the Army and British Arrangement—Wife—Matthew Wife—Family service.

On our last anchorage started up and made an awful racket and shook the old tub from stem to stern. I could tell that we had cut loose from the deck and were moving. After a while they shut off the gas engines and started the motors and we began to submerge. When we were all the way under I looked through the periscope and saw a Dutch merchantman. We stayed under about half an hour and then came back to the surface. One of the garbles was telling me later on that this same sub had gone out of control a few weeks before and kept diving and diving until she struck bottom. I do not know how many fathoms down it was, but it was farther than any commander would take a sub if he could help it. This garby said they could hear the plates cracking and it was a wonder that they did not crack up from the pressure, but she weathered it, pressure button and all, and in a quarter of an hour was on the surface. While on the surface they sighted smoke, submerged again, and soon over the horizon came eight battleships, escorted by Zeppis and destroyers.

They tested their tubes before they got in range. Finally they let go. The first shot missed, but after that they hit like a gun and the garby said all you could hear was the knocking of the detonated munition.

About two minutes later they sighted three destroyers, two on each bow, and one dead ahead. The sub steered at one side on the wings and the destroyers stayed with their convoy. The sub launched two torpedoes at less than a mile apart trying to get away from the destroyers and the garby said at least one of them was hit. These must have been some of the big ones that came down from the North sea. The garby said he thought they were off the Dutch coast at the time, but he was not sure.

It is this cruise that I was on was only a practice cruise and we did not meet with any extremity in the short time that we were out.

CHAPTER XI.

Action at the Dardanelles.

I made twelve trips to the Dardanelles in all, the Cassard acting generally as convoy to troop ships, but one trip was much like another, and I cannot remember all the details, so I will give only certain incidents of the voyages that you might like interesting. We never put into the Dardanelles without being under fire—but besides saying so, what is there to write about in that? It was interesting enough at the time, though, you can take it from me!

Coming up to "X" beach on our third trip to the Dardanelles, the weather was as nasty as any I have ever seen. The rain was sweeping along in sheets—great big drops, and driven by the wind in regular volleys. You could see the wind coming by the line of white against a swell where the drops hit.

As we rounded the point, the seas got choppy, and there were cross currents bucking the ship from every angle, it seemed. You could not see two hundred yards away, the rain the man really was overboard, because he saw that the wave would get him. I rushed back to the port bow and looked back, for the wave had carried him clear across the decks, and saw the poor lad in the water, trying to find himself off from the ship's side. But it was no go, and the port propeller blades just carved him into bits.

On our homeward voyage we received word again by wireless that there were Zeppelins in the sea. We did not believe this and it proved to be untrue. But there were other stories and tales, ones told us by one of the wireless operators, that some of the garbles believed. This chap was the real original Baron Munchausen when it came to yarning, and for a while he had me going too. He would whisper some startling tale to us and make us promise not to tell, as he had picked it from some other ship's message, and the Old Man would spread-eagle him if he found it out. They probably would have logged him, at that, if they had known he was filling us full of wind the way he did.

He told me one time that Henry Ford had invented something or other for locating subs miles away, and also another device that would draw the sub right up to it and swallow it whole. He had a lot of other yarns that I cannot remember, but I did not believe him because I saw he was picking out certain men to tell certain yarns to—that is, spinning them where they would be more sure of being believed and not just spinning them anywhere.

So I got pretty tired of this stuff after a while and when we put out from Brest on the fourth voyage I got this fellow on deck in rough weather and began talking to him about the chap who had gone overboard the time before and had been cut up by the propeller. I pretended that, of course, he knew all about it—that the Old Man had had this garby pushed overboard because he was too free with his mouth. But this did not seem to do any good, so I had to think up another way.

When we were out two days I got hold of our prize liar again. I figured that he would be superstitious and I was right. I said that of course he knew that a ship could not draw near Cape Helles and get away again unless at least one man was lost, or that, if it did get away, there would be many casualties aboard. I said it had always been that way and claimed that the Old Man had pushed this garby overboard because someone had to go. I said on our other trips no one had been sacrificed and that was the reason we had suffered so much, and that the Old Man had been called down by the French minister or the navy. I told him the Old Man would pick on whatever garby he thought he could best spare.

That was all I had to tell him. Either he thought the Old Man knew of his yarning or else he did not think himself of much account, for he disappeared that very watch and we did not see him again until we were on the homeward voyage and a steward happened to dig into a provision hold. There was our lying friend, with a life belt on, another under his head, and the bight of a rope around his waist, fast asleep. Why he had the rope I do not know, but he was scared to death and thought we were going to chuck him overboard at once. I think he must have told the officers everything, because I noticed them looking pretty hard at me—or at least I thought I did; maybe it was my conscience, if I may brag about having one—and I thought one of the lieutenants was just about to grin at me several times, but we never heard any more about it or any more yarns from our wireless friend.

The fourth voyage was pretty rough, too. The old girl would stick her nose into the seas and many times I thought she would forget to come out. We had a lot of sand piled up against the wheelhouse and after we dived pretty deep one time and bucked out slowly, there was not a grain of sand left. It looked like the sea was just kidding us, for we were almost into quiet water, and here it had just taken one sea aboard to clean up the sand we carried all the way from Brest.

The host thought this very strange. "Why, old fellow," he remarked, "I don't believe the biggest fool in Ireland could make you laugh tonight," was the wit's cutting rejoinder.

"What became of Billings?" "He's laid up, a victim of the war." "I didn't even know he had enlisted."

"He hasn't. He sprained his larynx telling how things ought to be done."

Dinner Stories

Tobias Knowall peeped through the window of his office, then tip-toeing noiselessly past a flannel bandage around his neck, put his arms in a sling, ran his hands through his hair and limped to the door.

"Mr. Knowall?" inquired the caller. "Yes," groaned Knowall. "What can I do for you?"

"You appear to be far from well," said the caller.

"Appear to be?" exclaimed

Knowall. "Do you think I'm doing this for fun? But what can I do for you?"

"Oh—er—I won't trouble you now," said the caller hurriedly. "Any time will do." And he departed.

"I'm sorry, I'm terrible," murmured Knowall, pulling off his bandages.

"But it's really the quickest way to get rid of these life insurance agents. That one won't trouble me again, anyhow!"

A witty Irishman was once invited to a large dinner party in London during the hope that he would amuse and divert his host's guests. But it's really the quickest way to the dinner he preserved a solemn and serious face, and did nothing but eat and keep his eyes on his plate.

1918 is our 40th consecutive year of service as advertising agents and counsel.

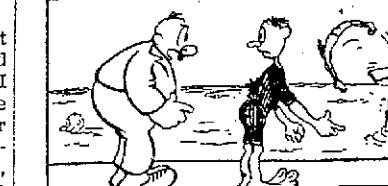

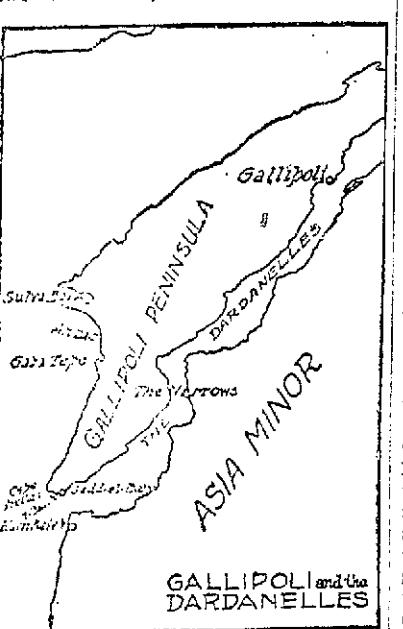

Five elements of business practice have made possible this rather unusual term of successful work and growth

- We have faithfully preserved our first clear ideal of constant, generous service.
- We have maintained always a high sense of our responsibility in spending other men's money.
- Each item of our service is invariably executed with a nice regard for detail.
- The utmost personal reliability always has been insisted upon among our personnel.
- We have turned to advantage each advertising experience in a business life of four decades.

These things also account for the steady increase of business on the part of our clients.

We invite correspondence with advertisers who would appreciate such a service.
